

Prism Direct Error Messages

These messages are displayed directly from within PRISM by the `puterror()` function. They are shown in a message box, or sent to a log file depending on the context of the error.

If they are displayed in a message box, the caption will look like the following:

"Error Message - PRISM" (1.51)

Errors that require a decision have the caption:

'Caution' (1.51)

Note: deYesOrNo(), the third message box call-back, should not be used for errors or warnings, just genuine choices.

A % symbol indicates a placeholder for a parameter at run time.

SQL errors only occur when a database link to an external data source is in use.

Compiler Errors

Note:

- Most compiler errors have two codes, a conventional MS (message) code and a DLE code. The MS code is identical (when it exists) except it starts MS_ instead of DLE_.
- The DLE labels are actually offsets from DLE_SUCCESS, the absolute message numbers are given on the right.
- The ELF errors are physically in the middle of this and conflict in actual numbers, but luckily only with runtime errors that have no actual messages in PRISM.
- DLE_SUCCESS and DLE_FAILURE are returned many times in the code where it should be DPE –harmless, but possibly misleading.

Offset	PRISM API Name	Text	Absolute Message Number
0	DLE_SUCCESS		13200
1	DLE_FAILURE	General failure error.	13201
102	DLE_INVALID_SCRIPT		N/A
103	DLE_END_OF_SCRIPT		N/A
104	DLE_END_OF_EVENT		N/A

Syntax Errors

Offset	PRISM API Name	Text	Absolute Message Number
201	DLE_INVALID_TOKEN	Syntax error near indicated position.	13401
202	DLE_NEST_TOO_DEEP	Too many levels of nesting	13402
203	DLE_MISSING_END	Missing end from For, While, function	13403
204	DLE_INVALID_EVENT	Invalid event being defined.	13404
